Doctor of Letters

John Michael Green
Novelist

Presented by Miriam Dean-Otting
Professor of Religious Studies

Citation written by Royal W.F. Rhodes
Donald L. Rogan Professor of Religious Studies

Nerdfighters of the world, unite! Today, we honor Kenyon’s own John Green, a double major in English and religious studies, noted now as an award-winning, New York Times- bestselling author, vlogger, comic imp, defender of “the wonk-ish” and the “goofily informative.” You hold the distinction, according to the American Library Association, of having written the book most frequently called for to be banned—the Bible was sixth on that list. With your Vlogbrother Hank, you created a year-long challenge on YouTube, “Brotherhood 2.0,” to gamely “increase awesome and decrease suck,” as good a mission statement for liberal education as one can find. That workshop of the heart fostered “Project for Awesome,” your charity initiative, along with “Crash Course,” a panorama of education videos on history, science, healthcare, and the complexities of our diverse world, demonstrating your saying that “Truth rejects simplicity.” It is a needed antidote in this divisive time, when you remind us: “There is no Them. There are only facets of Us.” But it is in your young-adult novels, notably The Fault in Our Stars and Paper Towns, that you have had the most powerful influence while fulfilling the best function of this genre: to make young people feel less alone. You challenge all of us as you write: “What is the point of being alive, if you don’t at least try to do something remarkable.” So, in thanking you for teaching us an alphabet of the soul, we extend to you the Nerdfighter’s salute: Never forget to be Awesome.

Doctor of Humane Letters

William Francis Klein
Professor of English

Presented by P.F. Kluge
Writer-in-Residence

Of the people who come to work at Kenyon, some move on, to find fame—or obscurity—in other places. This year we honor some stayers-on, who have not only served the College but become part of it. We salute Joe Nelson, the longtime vice president for finance; we remember Thomas J. Edwards, the late, legendary dean of students. And we celebrate William Klein, who, came here in 1968 and, after nearly half a century, retires today. Bill’s teaching dealt largely with the history of the English language. His interests led to presentations for fifteen consecutive years at the International Congress of Medieval Studies. What I will remember most about Bill is how often I could find him in his office on the second floor of Sunset Cottage, grading papers, preparing lectures. We all do that. But often he sat there thinking, meditating, reposing in a place he loved. He didn’t just work in that office; he lived there. A former student recalls this: “Some of my fondest Kenyon memories are of Friday afternoons in Bill’s office, drinking tea and translating old English, where I learned that serious scholarship need not arise out of seriousness of personality. Whether rapping the opening of the Canterbury tales or arguing over the proper solution of the Anglo-Saxon riddles, Bill challenged his students to take delight in whatever they studied. The word I most associate with Bill is joy: joy in literature, in the whimsy of creation, and in all life.” Bill, I will miss finding you in your office. Thanks for coming. Thanks for staying.

Doctor of Laws

Joseph Gerard Nelson
Chief Investment Officer, Kenyon College

Presented by David H. Lynn
Professor of English and David Banks Editor of the Kenyon Review

Aside from members of the singularly successful chess club which you long coached, relatively few Kenyon students have known you, Joseph Nelson, or how much they have owed you over the thirty-eight years you have served their college. Yet the chess players, with first-hand knowledge of your competitive fire, might have confided to those who graduate today that their alma mater—and yours, since the Class of 1973 adopted you—has never known a fiercer advocate or better friend. Only those who have seen you in action fully realize how you have come to love Kenyon, to protect and defend it. Having first arrived in Gambier as comptroller, when the College’s financial health was fraught, you rose to vice president for finance in 1987. In the years since, you have dedicated yourself to disciplined budgetary management. As chief investment officer, and working with the Kenyon Board of Trustees, you were also largely responsible for managing the College’s endowment, which grew under your innovative guidance from $30 million to some $250 million. These numbers represent more than mere benchmarks, as our newly minted alumni surely are well prepared to understand. Because of your efforts Kenyon College is stronger, more viable, better prepared for a future every bit as distinguished as its long history. We, your friends and colleagues and students, are proud to honor you, and we are grateful for the record of accomplishment that has benefited us all.

Doctor of Humane Letters

Natalia Lwowna Olshanskaya
Professor of Russian

Presented by James H. McGavran III
Assistant Professor of Russian

Natalia Lvovna Olshanskaya, your name was a struggle for most people at Kenyon, and just as you predicted, with your typical ironic amusement, it will continue to be for years to come as it lives on in what you have done for us and for this institution. Devoted teacher and colleague, fiercely loyal mentor and friend, and surrogate mother to hundreds of students far away from home, you gave of yourself—your knowledge, your wisdom, and your love—unreservedly, without restraint or calculation. After a successful career at Odessa State University, you came to Kenyon in 1997, and once here, you singlehandedly saved Russian from near-death and turned it into a thriving program, with graduates who have routinely won Fulbright fellowships and entrance into prestigious universities, and perhaps less routinely gone on to become acclaimed authors and Commencement speakers. A professor and scholar of the highest standards, you demanded—both through example and through actual, explicit commands—the absolute best from your students, and our best is what you got. It is for the care and kindness you showed us, however, that we will always remember and love you: you were unswervingly devoted to the people in your life and the people of Kenyon College. You were taken from us far too soon and after terrible suffering, and we grieve your loss desperately, but it is with profound and enduring gratitude that we honor your achievements today.

Doctor of Letters

Linda Olenik Pastan
Poet

Presented by Jennifer S. Clarvoe
Professor of English

Linda Pastan: Poet, mother, grandmother. From the Bronx to Radcliffe and Brandeis, you distinguished yourself writing poems, then gave it up to focus on family. What a good poet you might have been, you told your husband, if you hadn’t married him. Luckily, after ten years of complaints, he urged you back to the page – and so, morning by morning, week by week, year by year, you became the author of more than a dozen books, recipient of numerous awards, including Poetry’s Bess Hokin Prize, the Poetry Society of America’s Alice Fay di Castagnola Award, and the Ruth Lilly Prize for lifetime achievement. You served as Poet Laureate of Maryland from 1991 to 1995 and taught at the Bread Loaf Writers’ Conference for twenty years. Poets are farmers, you assert, hoeing and planting. Your deft lines make that dedicated labor seem light work, in poems that are wry, luminous, and deep. Your latest book, Insomnia, puts you in the company of Kenyon poet Randall Jarrell, whose “Bat-Poet” made up poems because he couldn’t sleep during the day. Your curious insomniac counts everything—from sheep, to whitecaps, from biologists to astronomers—as, indeed, everything counts. But praise can quickly shade into elegy. Of the creamy, delicate dogwoods in May, you write, “I took for granted / that the world would remain / as it was, and I / would remain with it.” May you and your bright poems remain, awake when we are asleep, and dreaming when we are awake.

Doctor of Humane Letters

Howard Lawrence Sacks
Professor of Sociology

Presented by Ric S. Sheffield
Professor of Sociology and Legal Studies

Howard Sacks: teacher, scholar, mentor, neighbor, and, most of all, friend. First at Kenyon to be awarded the National Endowment for the Humanities Distinguished Teaching Fellowship, recipient of forty grants and fellowships, and founder and director of the College’s Rural Life Center, you have had an impact on the entirety of this community along the tranquil Kokosing. Multidisciplinary and holistic in approach, you embrace the arts, humanities, and sciences, investigating such topics as social theory, agricultural practices, country music, and African American history. You have served Kenyon as department chair, senior advisor to the president, and provost, and you have earned national recognition for your decades of service at the national and state arts and humanities agencies. No one has been a better advocate for considering the College’s rural locale as its chief asset. The social scientist in you prods students to go into the field to take advantage of the laboratory that is their surrounding world. The humanist in you exhorts students to build partnerships with members of the communities they encounter. Many of your students remark that learning alongside farmers, artisans, and musicians has transformed them for life, well beyond their years at Kenyon. In all of your efforts, whether the many years of directing the legendary Gambier Folk Festival along with your wife, Judy, or leading public projects on family farming and rural sustainability, you have worked tirelessly to dismantle the “town-gown” divide. For these achievements and so much more, we are indebted and inspired. Thank you.

Doctor of Fine Arts

Karen Frey Snouffer
Professor of Art

Presented by Claudia J. Esslinger
Professor of Art

Karen Snouffer, dynamic artist, impassioned educator, loyal listener and friend: Today we celebrate your bright spirit on this hill you have come to call home. A luminous choreography winds through your artistic work. Elements converge and contort, reveal and recede, coalesce and explode. From ordinary objects to extraordinary memories, your work serves as a conduit for perceptive expressions that have been exhibited from Los Angeles, California, to Épernay, France. Grants and residencies from the Ohio Arts Council, the Great Lakes Colleges Association, and the McGregor Foundation underscore your professional achievement. Titles from your work illuminate your artistic projects: “Ordinary Vanities,” “Tasty Buds,” “My Chaos is your Chaos,” and “Extraordinary Father.” As a professor of painting, drawing, installation, and mixed media, you have encouraged students to experience a process of art-making that is intuitive, informed, and intimately connected to their lives. Your energy is infectious, infusing your classroom--and your advising office--with the power of creative ambition, artistic possibility, and individual potential. Always curious, you have recently learned two new languages and developed courses in Chicana art and, with a colleague, art and mathematics. Always generous, you have spearheaded public art and service-learning projects. Ever collaborative, you have worked with accomplished poets, dancers, and other artists. You are a mover, and a shaker. As one student said: “She does the best Cha-Cha on campus, with such ease and grace you forget she is not a college student herself.” Today we honor you for every move you offer us, in the classroom, in the studio, and in our community.

Doctor of Laws

Henry Paul Toutain
Dean of Students, Kenyon College

Presented by
Professor of English

Henry Toutain, as dean of students in the Student Affairs Division of the College, your colleagues characterize you as “gentle,” “humane, “ “selfless,” and “deliberate.” You are respected for your ability to see the humor in almost any situation and to craft all communications with literary flair befitting a wordsmith’s command of the English language. As we celebrate the positive and enduring impact of your time at Kenyon, we applaud your thoughtfulness in challenging us to be our very best while applying your decency, calm composure, and integrity to the unwavering support of your entire staff. You are especially treasured for your ability to bring the right folks together at the right time, with the charge to find the right solution to serve the most affected with an eye, always, toward mitigating harm. In all interactions, you communicated to those working with you that they were truly valued, respected, and important to the mission of serving the College’s students. You set the perfect example in that regard, as we observed that you were particularly indefatigable in your commitment and dedication to the well-being and success of our students. We salute you, Hank Toutain, as you take your leave from your office in Gund Commons. And we wish you many years ahead to harvest all of the good karma you have sent out into the world, many uninterrupted nights of sleep, time to enjoy your family, and time to reflect upon the immense impact you have had on countless students, co-workers, and friends.

Doctor of Letters

Terry Tempest Williams
Writer

Presented by Adele S. Davidson
Charles Pettit McIlwaine Professor of English

Terry Tempest Williams, your generous embrace of all things wild and holy, fierce and free, nurtures interconnectedness among disparate, divided lives. The desert beckoned your Mormon forbears: with a passion as formidable and profound as their “deep-remembered” landscapes, you remind us that democracies foster and require open spaces, open hearts, and that education by wilderness exhilarates and exalts the spirit, providing “a spark to ignite social change.” Innumerable honors and distinguished appointments at the University of Utah and Dartmouth College attest to your ethical discernment, visionary clarity, and ecological insight and remind us that in your hands “a pencil is a wand and a weapon,” a phrase you once whispered to the year-old daughter of your nephew, Nathan Thomas, Kenyon Class of 1999. Your mother bequeathed you shelves full of her diaries, only for you to find the pages all left blank. From unwritten lives, unspoken hunger, you help the voiceless find a voice. Who will speak for a bedraggled planet, a broken world, the place where prairie dogs kiss, our only sanctuary and refuge? You lift that voice: Tell us of deserts and the dawn; warn us; change the political climate to combat climate change; set free our speech and rock the justice in our hearts; help the pronghorn and peregrine prevail; inspire us to “know wilderness in the way that [we] know love” and to cling to it for our own dear life. We ask a lot: no more than you have already done. We need and laud your healing words.

Graduation Honors

Collegiate and Departmental Honors. The degree with collegiate honors is achieved by attaining a cumulative grade-point average within the following ranges:

- 3.50-3.69, cum laude;
- 3.70-3.89, magna cum laude;
- 3.90 and above, summa cum laude.

Students showing exceptional scholarship may be accepted by their major department to read for the degree with departmental honors. The three major classes of departmental honors, based on work in the major, are Honors, High Honors, and Highest Honors, as determined jointly by an outside examiner and the members of the student's department.

Senior Exercise. A Senior Exercise must be satisfactorily completed by each graduating senior. While each department determines the nature of its exercise, the purpose, in general, is to promote coherence of the student's major program. Each department reports a grade of Pass, or Pass with Distinction, for this exercise. An asterisk (*) denotes that the student passed the exercise with distinction.

Phi Beta Kappa, Beta Chapter of Ohio. Phi Beta Kappa, the oldest Greek-letter fraternity in the country, was founded in 1776. The Kenyon chapter was organized in 1858 as an honorary society dedicated to the recognition of scholarly achievement. It is the fourteenth in age of 276 chapters. Elections to membership are made from the best scholars in the junior and senior classes who have shown achievement through grades and an intellectual disposition.

Notes

A student completing a double major has met all the requirements for the major in two departments and passed a Senior Exercise in each. A synoptic major, individually designed by the student to meet his or her special interests, includes work in two or more departments and requires satisfactory completion of one Senior Exercise. An asterisk (*) denotes that the student passed the exercise with distinction.

This year, for the first time, a graduate of the Camp 4 Scholars at Kenyon will be graduating from the College and wearing the Camp 4 Honor Cord. Camp 4's colors are purple and gold, with the purple representing Kenyon and the gold signifying excellence. Honor Cord awardee Tehya Ayashe Boswell, who is graduating cum laude, with High Honors in Psychology, began her relationship with Kenyon as a high-school junior participating in the Camp 4 Summer Enrichment Program.

Honors Day 2016

Outstanding Kenyon students and faculty members, along with two distinguished alumni and a parent, were recognized at the College's annual Honors Day Convocation on April 12, 2016.

Honorary degrees were awarded to Katherine Simonds Dhanani '81, director of regional and security affairs in the Bureau of African Affairs at the U.S. Department of State, and John A. Rinka '70, a retired high-school English teacher who now works with aspiring teachers at the Watson School of Education of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

In addition, two faculty members were awarded $5,000 each as recipients of the 2016 Trustee Teaching Excellence Awards. Recognized for their superior work were Assistant Professor of English Pashmina Murthy in the junior-faculty category and Professor of Physics Paula C. Turner in the senior category.

Unless otherwise noted, winners are members of the Class of 2016.

Kenyon Educational Enrichment Program Graduates

The Kenyon Educational Enrichment Program (KEEP) is a selective four-year program for students from diverse ethnic, racial, and socioeconomic backgrounds who represent a broad range of curricular and co-curricular interests. The program's goal is to provide participants with support and a strong academic foundation while building a core group of leaders who will promote a culture of excellence throughout the community by inspiring, challenging, and energizing fellow students. The KEEP participants graduating this year are listed here.

Commencement 2016

The College's one hundred eighty-eighth Commencement ceremony features an acclaimed fiction writer, a distinguished poet, a noted environmental activist and writer, three retiring faculty members with a combined total of more than one hundred years of service, Kenyon's longtime vice president for finance, the College's dean of students, and the four-hundred fifteen young men and women of the Class of 2016 who will parade down Middle Path one last time before taking themselves and their diplomas out into the world.

Depending on the weather, and the seventeen-year cicadas, the graduation ceremony is being held either on the lawn between two of the College's oldest academic buildings, Ascension Hall and Samuel Mather Science Hall, or in the Kenyon Athletic Center, a more recent addition to the campus. The Baccalaureate service took place yesterday, on Friday, May 20, at 1:30 p.m.

This year's Baccalaureate speaker, chosen by the seniors, was Michael K. Durham, substance-abuse educator and counselor at the College's Cox Health and Counseling Center. A member of the counseling staff since 2006, he is a licensed social worker and a licensed independent chemical dependency counselor with a B.S. in social work from Bowling Green State University. He is also a much-admired advocate for students and their needs.

Following the Baccalaureate service, the graduating class gathered to partake in a cherished Kenyon tradition, the Senior Sing, which—if the weather cooperated—took place on the steps of Rosse Hall. The weekend has also featured all-campus seminars led by Kate Hedeem, associate professor of Spanish, and Judy Holdener, professor of mathematics.

Today, the address to the graduating class will be offered by John M. Green, who will receive an honorary doctorate from the College. In addition, Kenyon will honor William F. Klein, Joseph G. Nelson, Linda Pastan, Howard L. Sacks, Karen F. Snouffer, Henry P. Toutain, and Terry Tempest Williams. An honorary doctorate will also be conferred, posthumously, on Natalia L. Olshanskaya.

In the years since his own graduation from Kenyon in 2000, John Green has become one of the most acclaimed writers of young-adult fiction in his generation. His name appears frequently on best-seller lists along with such works as Paper Towns and The Fault in Our Stars, both of which have been made into feature films.

Green majored in English and religious studies at the College, graduating cum laude and earning distinction on his senior exercise in religious studies. After earning his degree, and with a career in the Episcopal ministry in mind, he went on to serve as a student chaplain at Nationwide Children's Hospital in Columbus, Ohio. His experiences with the ill children there inspired his turn to writing as an occupation.

While living in Chicago, Illinois, and New York City, Green made his living as a book reviewer. He published his first book, Looking for Alaska, in 2005, winning critical plaudits and the Michael L. Printz Award from the American Library Association. His other books, in addition to those already mentioned, include An Abundance of Katherines and two co-authored volumes, Let It Snow: Three Holiday Romances, with Maureen Johnson and Lauren Myracle, and Will Grayson, Will Grayson, with David Levithan.

Recipient of numerous honors for his fiction, including the Children's Choice Book Award, the Edgar Allen Poe Award, and the Los Angeles Times Book Prize, Green has also made a name for himself as a video blogger (vlogger) and pod-caster along with his brother, Hank Green. The brothers are the creators of Crash Course and Crash Course Kids, which provide educational programs for both teenagers and younger children, and the founders of Project for Awesome, which creates videos in support of charities and other nonprofit entities.

Green now makes his home in his native Indianapolis, Indiana, with his wife, Sarah Urist Green, a curator of art and the host of the PBS web program The Art Assignment. The couple has two children, Henry and Alice.

Bill Klein, professor of English, will be awarded an honorary doctorate in humane letters. A graduate of Butler University, he earned his M.A. and Ph.D. at the University of Chicago. Klein came to Kenyon in 1968, the last year in which the College was an all-male institution. Hired particularly to teach a course in linguistics and the history of the English language for students who were interested in becoming teachers, he is proud to say it remained one of his most popular courses. Over the years, his class and seminar topics, including the long-running "Modern Short Story," ranged widely across American and English literature. Klein and his wife, Friday Cafe cofounder Joyce Klein, are the parents of Kenyon graduates Thomas Klein '90, Anna Klein-Christie '93, and Michael Klein '99.

A graduate of Ohio State University, where he earned a B.S. in business administration, Joe Nelson joined the College in 1978 as comptroller. He was promoted to the post of vice president for finance in 1987. During Nelson's twenty-eight years in the job, Kenyon continued its longstanding tradition of balanced budgets, and its endowment grew from $30 million to more than $210 million. An accomplished chess player, and a member of the U.S. Chess Federation, he spent many years working with the College's Chess Club.

In recognition of his many services to the community, and his numerous friendships among alumni, Nelson was inducted into Kenyon's Class of 1973 as an honorary member. He moved into the newly created position of chief investment officer for the College in July 2015. Longtime partners in the accountancy firm of Nelson and Nelson, based in Mount Vernon, Ohio, Nelson and his wife, Sally Nelson, are the parents of two daughters, Brooke and Lindsey.

Natalia (known as Natasha) Olshanskaya, professor of Russian, was a member of the Kenyon faculty from 1997 until her death on January 20, 2016. Born in the Ukrainian city of Odessa, then a part of the Soviet Union, she earned her bachelor's degree in English literature, her master's degree in foreign-language teaching, and her doctorate in linguistics from Odessa State University. She went on to teach at Odessa State from 1975 to 1992, when she was offered a one-year post at Scotland's University of St. Andrews.

Olshanskaya left the Soviet Union with just an exit visa and a suitcase, with the expectation that she would return to Odessa after her year in Scotland. Her next stop, though, was the College of William and Mary, where she taught as a visitor from 1993 to 1997, the year she joined the Kenyon faculty as a visiting assistant professor of Russian. After winning a tenure-track job at the College in 2000, and a Whiting Award for summer research work the following spring, she earned tenure and promotion to associate professor in 2003 and full-professor status in 2011. Her areas of expertise included cinema studies, stylistic analysis of texts and genres, and translation theory.

Olshanskaya won Kenyon's Trustee Teaching Excellence Award, its highest form of faculty recognition, in 2005. Also a member of the College's international-studies faculty, she helped numerous students successfully apply for Fulbright awards. She was survived by her husband, Don Monson, a retired member of the William and Mary faculty and an affiliated scholar at Kenyon, and her daughter, Ksenia Sokolyanskaya '04.

Grandmother of a graduate in the Class of 2016, Linda Pastan is a renowned poet with more than a dozen books to her credit. Among them are A Fraction of Darkness, Queen of a Rainy Country, and, most recently, Insomnia, published in 2015. A graduate of Radcliffe College, which has honored her with its Distinguished Alumnae Award, she is also the winner of a Maurice English Poetry Award, a Pushcart Prize, and a Ruth Lilly Poetry Prize from the Poetry Foundation.

Pastan, who has twice been a nominee for the National Book Award, is a poet of the quotidian, dealing with such subjects as aging, family life, and the fragility of relationships. From 1991 to 1995, she held the post of poet laureate of Maryland. She lives in Potomac, Maryland, with her husband, physician and researcher Ira Pastan.

Howard Sacks, professor of sociology, will also receive an honorary doctorate in humane letters. Holder of a B.A. from Case Western Reserve University and an M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, he has been a member of the Kenyon faculty since 1975. Sacks was the College's first recipient of the National Endowment for the Humanities Distinguished Teaching Professorship. His courses have dealt with social psychology, contemporary theory, field research, and community. A widely published scholar and author of the award-winning Way Up North in Dixie, he directed Kenyon's Rural Life Center and maintained affiliations with the African Diaspora and American Studies programs. Sacks and his wife, Judith Rose Sacks, parents of Hannah Rose Sacks '08, live on a farm a few miles east of Gambier.

Karen Snouffer, professor of art, will be awarded an honorary doctorate in fine arts. With a B.S. and an M.F.A. from Ohio State University, she has been a member of the College's studio-art faculty since 1998, concentrating on installation and multi-media processes. Snouffer explores themes related to identity, history, and place and their intersections and exhibits her work in both regional and national venues. A former fellow of the Fine Arts Work Center in Provincetown, Massachusetts, and artist-in-residence at Headlands Center for the Arts in Sausalito, California, she has received six fellowships from the Ohio Arts Council as well as grants from the Great Lakes Colleges Association and the McGregor Foundation. Snouffer and her husband, Dan Snouffer, are the parents of an adult son, Tyler Snouffer.

Hank Toutain, dean of students, will receive an honorary doctorate of laws. A graduate of Providence College, he took both his M.A. and Ph.D. at the University of Chicago. Toutain came to Kenyon as dean of students in 2009, following nineteen years as vice president and dean at Gustavus Adolphus College and earlier tenures in student-affairs positions at Fordham and Bucknell universities and the University of Chicago. As dean of students, he led the College's Student Affairs Division until the appointment of Vice President Meredith Harper Bonham '92 in 2015. He chose to continue as dean rather than seek the new vice presidency in order to focus on specific student and family issues, conflict resolution, and problem solving. Toutain and his wife, Bev, are the parents of two adult children, a daughter and a son.

Terry Tempest Williams, a conservationist as well a writer whose work is rooted in the American West, will be awarded an honorary doctorate of letters. A native of California and a bachelor's and master's graduate of the University of Utah, she published her first book, The Secret Language of Snow, with Ted Major in 1984. The children's book went on to win the National Science Foundation Book Award.

Williams's other books, which comprise essays, nonfiction, and poetry, include the award-winning memoir Refuge: An Unnatural History of Family and Place as well as Finding Beauty in a Broken World and, most recently, The Hour of Land: A Personal Topography of America's National Parks. She has also published widely on environmental and social issues in such venues as the New Yorker, the New York Times, and Orion. Williams divides her time among Utah, Wyoming, and New Hampshire, where she has taught as a visiting professor at Dartmouth College.

A History of Kenyon Commencements

Kenyon's founder, Bishop Philander Chase, conducted the first Commencement exercises of the College on September 9, 1829, in a large, bare, basement room in the just-completed center section of Old Kenyon, the first permanent building. There were six graduates: G. Dennison, J.B. Chase, A. Blake, S. Chase, P.C. Freeman, and B.B. Sayre.

As soon as Rosse Chapel (later known as Rosse Hall) was completed (about 1840), the ceremonies were moved there; Rosse was the location for all graduation exercises for more than a century. It was in Rosse Chapel on August 3, 1842, that the class valedictorian, Rutherford B. Hayes, a future president of the United States, delivered a Commencement address entitled "College Life."

Until the 1890s, it was customary for each graduating senior to deliver an oration, sometimes in English but often in Latin, Greek, or Hebrew. Since the number of graduates fluctuated from four in 1879 to eighteen in more prosperous years, the programs could sometimes be completed in an afternoon but often took all day, with an hour-and-a-half break for lunch. By 1894, activities connected with Commencement had assumed such large proportions that events started on Sunday and culminated with the graduation exercises on Thursday.

During World War II, the civilian enrollment at Kenyon shrank to about forty students, but President Gordon Keith Chalmers was determined that every Kenyon graduate should still have his moment of glory. So, in December 1943, formal Commencement ceremonies, with the faculty in full academic regalia, were held for two graduates.

The tremendous influx of students coming to Kenyon after World War II under the provisions of the G.I. Bill made graduating classes so large that Rosse Hall could no longer accommodate Commencement audiences. The first outdoor ceremony was held in 1950, in the same location as today's exercises. The rainsite, at first Wertheimer Fieldhouse, became the Ernst Center in 1982. The fieldhouse was demolished in 2003 to make way for the Kenyon Athletic Center; the Ernst Center was razed in 2009. Since 2006, the Kenyon Athletic Center has served as the rainsite.

Every seventeen years, the move outdoors results in exposure to countless millions of uninvited and unwanted visitors—the cicadas that appear on Gambier Hill in late May and early June. The 1965 Commencement was especially plagued by the harmless insects, which dropped from the trees and piled up in great heaps around the tree trunks. The cicadas last returned in 1999, but the onslaught, with its eerie shrilling, didn't peak until after Commencement. Next invasion (which you may already have noticed): 2016.

Kenyon adheres to its classical tradition of conducting the formal part of the Commencement exercises in Latin and printing diplomas in Latin. But it no longer translates the names of the graduates; up until the late 1960s, William became Gulielmus and Thomas was transcribed as Thomam.

Academic Costume and Procession

Academic gowns represent a tradition handed down from the universities of the Middle Ages. These institutions were founded by the Church; the students, being clerics, were obliged to wear the prescribed gowns at all times. Round caps later became square mortarboards. The hood, originally a cowl attached to the gown, seems to have had three uses: it could be slipped over the head for warmth, worn as a shoulder cape, or, when hanging from the shoulder, used as a bag in which alms could be collected. It is believed that when large wigs were worn the cape part of the hood was cut open in front and a narrow neckband inserted. The entire garment, cape and hood proper, was allowed to fall back, producing approximately the effect we see today.

In America, the hood is the most outstanding feature. Much of the American academic costume is derived from regalia worn at British universities. The usual color for academic gowns in the United States is black. The bachelor's gown is worn closed, while the master's and doctor's may be worn open or closed. The shape of the sleeve is the distinguishing mark of the gowns: bachelor, long pointed sleeve; master, oblong, square cut in back with an arc cut away in front; doctor, bell shaped.

Caps are black, as are the tassels for the bachelor of arts (B.A. or A.B.), bachelor of science (B.S. or Sc.B.), and bachelor of engineering (B.E.) degrees. Tassels for the doctor of philosophy (Ph.D.) degree are gold, while those for other graduate and professional degrees may be of the color corresponding to the trimming on the hoods. Special caps—beefeater caps—are worn at Kenyon by the trustees. This type of cap is also used by some European universities.

Many European universities have distinctive caps and gowns that are different from those commonly used in this country. Some of the gowns are of bright colors, some are embellished with fur. A few of these may be noted in the academic procession today.

The shape and size of the hood marks the college degree of the wearer. The hoods are lined with the color of the institution from which the wearer received his or her degree. The trimming of the collar of the hood is the color that designates the degree: liberal arts, white; fine arts and architecture, brown; science, golden yellow; music, pink; divinity, scarlet; law, purple; engineering, orange; philosophy, blue; medicine, green; public health, salmon; forestry, russet; nursing, apricot. With more than fifteen hundred colleges and universities in the United States, various arrangements of the primary colors are used.

Honorary-degree hoods are distinguished as follows: master of arts (M.A.), white; doctor of humane letters (L.H.D.) and doctor of letters (Litt.D.), white; doctor of science (Sc.D.), golden yellow; doctor of divinity (D.D.), scarlet; doctor of laws (LL.D.), purple; doctor of fine arts (D.F.A.), brown.
