Requirements: Art and Art History

Fine Arts Division

The goal of the Department of Art and Art History is to provide instruction in and experience with the visual arts in the context of the liberal arts. The department offers two majors: studio art and the history of art. A major in studio art is intended to make the student particularly qualified to communicate ideas in visual form. A major in the history of art is intended to prepare the student to interpret and contextualize ideas presented in visual form throughout the past.

Studio Art

Introductory Courses

In each course, students confront the intellectual and aesthetic components that go into making personally meaningful artwork, guided by demonstrations, slide examples, lectures and critiques. Course content and approach differ among the sections and courses, but in each the goal is to introduce students to the ideas, techniques and vocabularies of contemporary artistic practice.

Requirements for the Studio Art Major

Students majoring in studio art must complete:

- Three courses of introductory work (ARTS 101–108), which should be completed by the end of the sophomore year
- Four courses of intermediate work (ARTS 200–391)
- Two courses of advanced work (ARTS 480–481) with two different members of the studio art faculty, one each semester of the senior year
- Two courses of art history, which should be taken by the end of the sophomore year, if possible.

Students majoring in studio art may not take a required course as pass/D/fail or as an individual study.

The Senior Capstone in Studio Art

The Senior Capstone in studio art consists of a public exhibition of a cohesive body of work in Kenyon College's Gund Gallery, a written artist's statement and an oral defense and presentation with each member of the studio faculty. Detailed guidelines are available to download on the studio art department website.
Requirements for the Studio Art Minor

Students minoring in studio art must complete:

- Two courses of introductory work (ARTS 101–108)
- Three courses of intermediate work (ARTS 210–381)
- One course of art history

Students minoring in studio art may not take a required course as pass/D/fail or as an individual study.

Transfer and Off-Campus Study Credit Policy

A maximum of two studio art courses taken off-campus may be applied to the major. A maximum of one studio art course taken off-campus may be applied to the minor.

Art History

Courses

Art historians analyze the complex relationship between visual representation and culture. This is achieved by examining the connection between objects, artists, and society on a global scale. Art history students use interdisciplinary methods to consider a range of art and architecture within broad cultural, geographic and historical contexts. 100-level introductory courses are designed for students who have had little or no experience with art history. These courses, which may be taken in any sequence, introduce students to the concepts, vocabulary and methods of the discipline. Most intermediate courses (200-levels) and seminars (300-levels) require a 100-level course as a prerequisite. No AP credit or advanced placement is offered through art history. AP credit cannot be used to satisfy any requirements of the art history major or minor.

Students Graduating in 2023

Use the major requirements found in the archived course catalog.

Requirements for the Art History Major

The art history major requires twelve courses: eleven courses in art history and one course in studio art. Certain courses in related disciplines, such as American studies and classics, count toward the eleven art history courses required for the major (see note below). The core art history requirements are distributed across the introductory, intermediate, and advanced level. The major requirements are:

- At least two 100-level ARHS courses (up to three count toward the major)
- At least five 200-level ARHS courses (up to seven count toward the major)
- At least one 300-level ARHS course (up to two count toward the major)
- ARHS 480 (Senior Seminar)
• One ARTS course

Students may therefore choose one of the following four options to meet the required 12 courses for the art history major:

• Two 100-levels + six 200-levels + two 300-levels + ARHS 480 + one ARTS course
• Two 100-levels + seven 200-levels + one 300-level + ARHS 480 + one ARTS course
• Three 100-levels + six 200-levels + one 300-level + ARHS 480 + one ARTS course
• Three 100-levels + five 200-levels + two 300-levels + ARHS 480 + one ARTS course

Distribution Requirements for the Major: Our distribution requirements are organized into two categories: place and time. Classes at the 100, 200 and 300-level may fulfill the time and place requirements.

To complete the place requirement, majors will take at least one course from each of three geographical areas:

• Asia
• Europe and the Americas
• Africa and the Middle East

To complete the time requirement, majors will take at least one course from each of three temporal categories:

• Before 600 CE
• 600-1800
• After 1800

Students can use a single course to fulfill up to two distribution requirements. For example, ARHS 224 (High Renaissance Art) fulfills the "Europe and the Americas" place requirement and the "600-1800" time requirement; ARHS 238 (Modern Chinese Art) fulfills the "Asia" place requirement and the "after 1800" time requirement.

For a complete list of which classes fulfill what requirements, please see the Department of Art History's webpage.

Course substitutions
Art history students may substitute two predetermined courses from other departments to fulfill intermediate (200-level) curricular requirements. CLAS 121, 122, 220 or 221 can fulfill the “before 600 CE” time requirement and the “Europe and the Americas” place requirement. AMST 209 can fulfill the “after 1800” time requirement and the “Europe and the Americas” place requirement. These substitutions apply to majors and minors.

Transfer Credit Policy
Students who want transfer credit to count toward the art history major or minor must petition the department with a copy of the syllabus of the course and a copy of their transfer transcript to verify the grade received. The department will decide on a case-by-case basis whether transfer credit will be counted towards the major or minor.

Off-Campus Credit Policy
With pre-approval, students studying abroad may count up to three courses of coursework for each semester of the OCS program. Art history is a global discipline and competence, including reading, in foreign languages is highly encouraged, as is study abroad.

Joint Majors
For information on the joint major in art history and Asian and Middle East studies, please see the Asian and Middle East studies webpage.

The Senior Capstone in Art History
The Senior Capstone requires students to deliver a research-based oral presentation, complete with slides, followed by a question-and-answer session. This public event, normally scheduled for a Saturday in mid-February, requires students to demonstrate their knowledge of a specific area of art history. Honors students will use this exercise to highlight a specific component of their larger project.

Process for the Senior Capstone
Students identify a preliminary thesis topic during the fall of their senior year. This process requires the preparation of a research proposal that includes a two- to three-page (double-spaced) prospectus outlining the goals of the project. This text must address which methodologies the student intends to use, the primary objects under investigation and how the project relates to current scholarship. This document will also include a bibliography and a list of courses (ARHS and otherwise) that have contributed to the proposal’s formation. It is expected, though not necessarily required, that the proposal will have originated in a 200- or 300-level course.

Students submit their proposal to the department chair, who collects and distributes each document to the faculty. Faculty will approve or reject each proposal based on whether the topic is reasonable in scope and clear in methodology. A student whose proposal is rejected must resubmit the document based on faculty recommendations. Students who receive faculty approval expand the project over the course of the fall semester and during winter break. Students are encouraged to consult with appropriate faculty to develop the project.

The Public Presentation
By fall break, the faculty announces a date for the public presentations, normally a Saturday in mid-February. Each presentation is a 15-minute, conference-style presentation delivered to a public audience. Students are placed into thematic panels of three or four students each to facilitate a spirited discussion after each group of talks. These question-and-answer sessions last 10–15 minutes per panel. Honors students are required to participate with the same level of engagement as their peers. Faculty will serve as moderators for each panel.

Evaluating the Presentations

Faculty evaluate each presentation based on the following criteria. A successful presentation must:

- Defend a clear, substantive thesis
- Effectively use appropriate evidence (primary and secondary sources)
- Show an awareness of current trends in the field
- Demonstrate a high level of preparedness (i.e., the talk does not exceed the time limit; slides are used strategically to support the thesis; questions are answered thoughtfully, etc.)

Faculty assign a score of high pass, pass, or fail to each presentation based on these criteria. These scores are delivered to students in writing by the department chair. Students who demonstrate excellence in each of the criteria listed above may be awarded distinction. This designation requires a unanimous “high pass” evaluation from all permanent members of the art history faculty.

Students may fail the presentation if their talk is: a) exceptionally short or shows an effort that is lacking; b) an obvious regurgitation of a previously delivered presentation that shows no development of the earlier thesis; c) characterized by obvious plagiarism; d) far beyond the scope of the original proposal; or e) clearly beyond the boundaries of art historical practice/methods.

Students who fail will work with at least one art history faculty member — likely their advisor — to compose a research essay based on their original topic. That essay includes 12–15 pages of text plus notes, images and a bibliography. The deadline for this essay is 5 p.m. on the second Friday after the return from spring break. Faculty then read this essay and agree to either pass or fail the student. A student who fails a second time revises and re-submits the paper until it is deemed acceptable by the faculty.

Honors

The Honors Program is an opportunity for students with demonstrated ability to work on a research project under the supervision of a faculty member. Permission of the art history faculty is required. To qualify for the Honors Program, the following are required:

- A minimum 3.33 cumulative GPA for all courses
- A minimum 3.5 GPA for all art history courses
- At least one (and preferably two) intermediate or advanced courses at Kenyon in the topic area
- Endorsement of the project by the proposed thesis advisor is mandatory before submitting an application for honors
Previous completion of a research paper in art history (preferably in the area of honors specialization) is essential. Meeting the minimum GPA does not automatically qualify a student for the Honors Program. Typically, if a student has written an exceptionally well-researched and well-written art history paper and meets the other criteria for acceptance into the Honors Program, a professor might suggest that the student undertake a related topic as an honors thesis. Alternately, students can discuss pursuing an honors thesis with their academic advisor and a potential thesis advisor. The project must be supervised by an art history professor who agrees and is available to serve as the honors thesis advisor, and whose interests and expertise coincide with the proposed project. In either case, the student then works closely with the thesis advisor to develop a project proposal to be submitted to the art history faculty. Departmental approval must be obtained during the spring semester preceding work on the thesis. Please see the art history departmental webpage for more information.

Requirements for the Art History Minor

The art history minor consists of six courses. The requirements are:

- Two courses at the introductory 100 level
- Three courses at the intermediate 200 level. (Students may substitute CLAS 121, 122, 220, 221 and AMST 209 to fulfill this requirement.)
- Advanced seminar at the 300 level

Minors may take ARHS 480 (Senior Seminar) but are not required to do so.

Courses in Art History

Introduction to Western Art: Ancient to Medieval

ARHS 110 CREDITS: 0.5

This course surveys Western art and architecture from the Paleolithic era to the end of the Middle Ages. Training in visual analysis is emphasized, as are the historical context, religious beliefs and social conditions in which the artwork was produced. This is primarily a lecture class, though discussion is encouraged. Requirements include examinations and short papers. This counts toward the introductory course requirement for the major. No prerequisite. Offered every semester.
Introduction to Western Art: Renaissance to Contemporary

ARHS 111 CREDITS: 0.5
This course surveys Western art and architecture from the Renaissance to the present. Framing the study of art history within a social context, this course will provide students with the tools for understanding style and interpreting meaning in individual works of art. Although this is a lecture format, discussion is encouraged. This counts toward the introductory course and Europe and Americas place requirements for the major. No prerequisite. Offered every semester.

Survey of Architecture

ARHS 113 CREDITS: 0.5
This course introduces students to the study of the practical and theoretical principles governing architecture. Architectural traditions from the ancient through the contemporary period will be considered. This counts toward the introductory course requirement for the major. No prerequisite.

Introduction to Asian Art

ARHS 114 CREDITS: 0.5
This course explores the highlights of Asian art, focusing on India, China and Japan. The class also will briefly cover Central Asia, Bengal, Nepal, Tibet, Thailand, Cambodia, Java and Korea. Buddhism, Hinduism, Confucianism, Taoism and other Asian beliefs will be explained in the context of how they affect Asian art. Types of artwork examined will include painting, sculpture, decorative arts and some architecture. Class requirements include four one-hour slide examinations and other assignments. This counts toward the introductory course and Asia place requirements for the major. No prerequisite.

Introduction to Islamic Art and Architecture

ARHS 115 CREDITS: 0.5
This introductory course surveys the history of Islamic art and architecture between the 7th and 16th centuries. Students will explore the rich visual and artistic traditions that developed and thrived under the caliphates and dynasties that ruled medieval Spain, North Africa, the Middle East and Central Asia. They will also investigate thematic issues central to the discipline of Islamic art history, including the function of ornament, the development of calligraphy in visual culture, the adoption and abstention of figural representation, and the impact of Orientalism. A diverse array of artistic media and techniques are examined, including painting, sculpture, textiles, manuscripts and architecture. Students will also be introduced to art-historical research strategies, and methods for writing about art. This counts toward the foundation-level, Africa and Middle East place and 600-1800 time requirements for the major. No prerequisite.

Introduction to African Art

ARHS 116 CREDITS: 0.5

This course explores the diversity of African art created on the continent and throughout the diaspora, from antiquity to the contemporary period. Students will examine artworks from both north and south of the Sahara representing an array of media and techniques, including sculpture, architecture, painting, photography, textiles and performance art. Class sessions will combine lecture and discussion to investigate key topics such as the significance of visual abstraction; art’s role in constructing (and contesting) ideas about the body, gender and sexuality; and the relationship between art and politics in the colonial and postcolonial periods. Ongoing debates about the problematic categories of “tribal” and “tourist” art in Africa, as well as “primitivism” in the West, will be examined in relation to questions of authenticity and appropriation. We will also critically evaluate the political and aesthetic contexts in which African art has been exhibited in museums. Students will be introduced to methods of art historical analysis and writing. This counts toward the introductory course and Africa and Middle East place requirements for the major. No prerequisite.

Greek Art

ARHS 220 CREDITS: 0.5

This course examines the art and architecture of Greece from Bronze Age Crete and Mycenaean palaces of the mainland to the historical age of Greece and the extended Greek cultures of southern Italy and the Hellenistic world. Special attention will be given to the development of Greek standards of beauty and the role of beauty in Greek culture. The format is lecture and discussion. This counts toward the Europe and Americas place and the before 600 CE time requirements for the major. Offered every other year. Any art history or classics course is recommended.

Roman Art

ARHS 221 CREDITS: 0.5

This course examines the art and architecture of Rome from its Etruscan and Latin origins through the decline of the Roman Empire. As Rome grew from a city to a world empire, Romans employed the arts in a wide variety of contexts, ranging from the domestic and funerary to the political and imperial, with art and architecture often used in the service of ritual or propaganda. The format is lecture and discussion. This counts toward the Europe and America place and the before 600 CE time requirements for the major. Offered every other year. Any art history or classics course is recommended.
Northern Renaissance Art

ARHS 222 CREDITS: 0.5
This course examines Netherlandish, French and German arts of the 15th and 16th centuries, including artists such as the Limbourgs, Jan Van Eyck and Albrecht Dürer. During lectures and class discussions, students will examine the visual arts of this period in relation to political power, religious upheaval, social class, gender and sexuality, and international trade. Specific topics include the transmission of style, the development of oil painting, the revolutionary expansion of the graphic arts and the impact of the Reformation. This counts toward the Europe and Americas place and the 600-1800 time requirements for the major. Any art history course is recommended.

Early Renaissance Art in Italy

ARHS 223 CREDITS: 0.5
This course investigates the beginnings of Italian Renaissance art from the profound changes of the late 13th century through the 15th century. Artists and architects such as Giotto, Donatello, Masaccio, Alberti and Botticelli will be examined in relation to social, religious and political issues during lectures and class discussions. Specific topics include the exploration of illusionistic perspectives, the economics of art patronage, the social elevation of the artist, and the roles of art and architecture as defenses against plague. This counts toward the Europe and Americas place and the 600-1800 time requirements for the major. Any art history course is recommended.

High Renaissance Art

ARHS 224 CREDITS: 0.5
This course focuses on the art and architecture of the High Renaissance in Italy. The works of artists and architects such as Leonardo da Vinci, Bramante, Titian, Sofonisba Anguissola, Michelangelo and Raphael, among others, will be explored in depth. The canonical High Renaissance will be compared to the growing Mannerist movement in the 16th century. Issues such as patronage, politics, gender and artistic theory will be examined in lectures and class discussions to shed light on the varied artistic production of this period. This counts toward the Europe and Americas place and the 600-1800 time requirements for the major. Any art history course is recommended.
Baroque Art

ARHS 225 CREDITS: 0.5
This course focuses on the art and architecture of the 17th century, starting in Rome and spreading outward to other parts of Europe and the Americas. Lecture and class discussion will focus on artists including Caravaggio, Artemisia Gentileschi, Bernini, Rubens, Rembrandt and Poussin. We will explore the formal characteristics and historical context of Baroque art in relation to the Catholic Reformation and expansion of Protestantism, the global spread of European imperialism, the politics of absolute rule and revolution, and the economics of art markets and cultural exchange. This counts toward the Europe and Americas place and the 600-1800 time requirements for the major. Any art history course is recommended.

American Art to 1900

ARHS 227D CREDITS: 0.5
This course addresses art produced in North America between colonialization and 1900. Students will examine the development of art within a broad social context by exploring the relationship between visual culture and race, gender and class. Specific topics will include genre and landscape painting, prints and photography, and the influence of European art academies. We will also address the relationship between art and slavery, war and industrialization. This course is the same as AMST 227D. The course must be taken as ARHS 227D to count towards the fine arts requirement. This counts towards the Europe and Americas place and the after 1800 time requirements for the art history major. Prerequisite: ARHS 111, AMST 108 or permission of instructor.

History of Photography

This course surveys the history of photography from the medium's invention in the 1830s to the present. Key issues will include the way photography functions as documentary evidence, demonstrates technological innovation, and is used as a means for artistic creativity. The role of digital imagery, social media, and the internet will also be addressed. Through lectures, critical readings, class presentations and discussions, students will develop a comprehensive understanding of the history of the medium within specific historical and cultural contexts. Emphasis will be given to the social history of photography in an international context. This counts toward the after 1800 time requirement for the major. Prerequisite: ARHS 111.
Race and Modern Art

ARHS 229 CREDITS: 0.5
This course examines the visual representation of race between the early modern era and the present. We will consider how factors including indigenous material culture, slavery, immigration, migration, war and political activism have shaped visual culture and modern art. In addition to traditional forms of fine art, such as painting, sculpture, photography and prints, students will also consider cartoons, advertising, film and other forms of mass media. We will also address the relationship between race and museums, monuments and memorials. This counts toward the Europe and Americas place and the after 1800 time requirement for the major. Prerequisite: ARHS 111, AMST 108 or permission of instructor.

Modern Art I: Impressionism to Surrealism

ARHS 230 CREDITS: 0.5
This course focuses on the evolution of modernism as an artistic practice and the emergence of the avant-garde as a social and political formation in Europe between 1880 and 1945. Among the themes to be considered are the relationship between art and technology, the cultural implications of "primitivism," and the significance of abstract and nonrepresentational art to modern expression. This counts toward the Europe and Americas place and the after 1800 time requirements for the major. Prerequisite: ARHS 111 or permission of instructor.

Cold War Modern Art

ARHS 231 CREDITS: 0.5
Beginning with abstract expressionism, this course will critically address the development of high modernism in New York after World War II. Students will analyze the importance of American art criticism during the 1950s before tracing the resistance to associated ideologies as seen in the global emergence of pop art, minimalism, conceptual art, and feminist art. This counts toward the Europe and Americas place and the after 1800 time requirements for the major. Prerequisite: ARHS 111 or permission of instructor.

Early Medieval Art

ARHS 232 CREDITS: 0.5
This course concerns the arts of medieval Europe from the fourth to the 10th centuries. The class will learn about the major forms of architecture, sculpture, painting and the decorative arts of the Middle Ages. Style and iconography will be considered within the cultural context of large societal movements, including monastic reform and pilgrimage. The secondary focus will be on information literacy and how to develop and write a research paper. The class format consists of lecture, discussion, debate and presentations. This counts toward the Europe and Americas place and the 600-1800 time requirements for the major. Prerequisite: any 100-level ARHS course.

Heaven & Earth: Art of the Byzantine Empire

ARHS 233 CREDITS: 0.5
This course explores the art and architecture of the Eastern Roman Empire, or Byzantium, from the founding of its capital, Constantinople, in 330 to the fall of the city in 1453. Following a chronological approach, the course introduces students to the appropriation and adaptation of long-established Roman ceremonial, iconographic and architectural forms to serve a new, specifically Christian, empire. Students will trace the transmission of artistic ideas, forms and objects across cultural, geographic and religious borders, and will examine the ways in which trade, war and diplomacy impacted Byzantine art. This counts toward the Europe and Americas place and the 600-1800 time requirements for the major. Any art history course is recommended.

Romanesque and Gothic Art

ARHS 234 CREDITS: 0.5
This course concerns the arts of medieval Europe from the fourth to the 10th centuries. The class will learn about the major forms of architecture, sculpture, painting and the decorative arts of the Middle Ages. Style and iconography will be considered within the cultural context of large societal movements, including monastic reform and pilgrimage. The secondary focus will be on information literacy and how to develop and write a research paper. The class format consists of lecture, discussion, debate and presentations. This counts toward the Europe and the Americas and the 600-1800 time requirements for the major. Prerequisite: any 100-level ARHS course.

Art of China

ARHS 235 CREDITS: 0.5
This course examines the extraordinary arts of China from the Paleolithic period (4000 BCE) through the 20th century. The class will learn about the rich traditions of jade, bronzes, lacquer, ceramics, textiles, painting, calligraphy, sculpture and architecture within their cultural context. Various forms of Buddhism, Confucianism, Daoism, Legalism and other beliefs will be explained in conjunction with how they affect Chinese art. This is primarily a lecture class, but discussion is encouraged. This counts toward the Asia place requirement for the major. Prerequisite: Any 100-level ARHS course or previous coursework in Asian studies.
Late Gothic Art in Europe

ARHS 237 CREDITS: 0.5

This course explores the arts of medieval northern Europe from the mid-13th through the early 16th centuries. The class will learn about the rich traditions of architecture, sculpture, painting and the decorative arts from the Late Gothic period. Style and iconography will be considered within the cultural context of large societal movements, including literacy, pilgrimage and chivalry. The class format will consist of lecture, discussion, debate and class presentations. The secondary focus will be on information literacy and how to develop and write a research paper. This counts toward the Europe and the Americas place and the 600-1800 time requirements for the major. Prerequisite: Any 100-level ARHS course.

Modern Chinese Art

ARHS 238 CREDITS: 0.5

At the time when China faced its largest challenge in history in terms of sovereignty, dignity and culture, its art experienced importation of Western forms and aesthetics. The two artistic traditions clashed, coexisted and were integrated. Chinese artists then attempted to infuse their art with the cultural identity of China. To understand the artistic impact of the West and China's reaction to it, we will investigate this journey from its beginning, the Opium Wars to 1949, when China moved forward from a feudal empire to a republican nation in a turbulent century. This counts toward the Asia place and the after 1800 time requirements for the major. Prerequisite: ARHS 111, 114 or permission of instructor.

Contemporary Chinese Art

ARHS 239 CREDITS: 0.5

The year 1949 was a watershed moment in 20th-century Chinese art, with the founding of the People's Republic of China. Art, therefore, experienced dramatic changes from the 1950s to the present. In this course, we will investigate the journey from ideologically oriented art to the art of the Cultural Revolution, and from the post-Mao period and the avant-garde movement to art in an era of urbanization in a global context. This counts toward the Asia place and the after 1800 time requirements for the major. Prerequisite: ARHS 111, 114 or permission of instructor.

History of Chinese Painting

ARHS 240 CREDITS: 0.5

China has a painting tradition that spans thousands of years, using mainly brush and ink on silk or paper. As different subject matter (mountains-and-waters, flowers-and-birds, and human figures) and techniques (ink, color and brushwork based in conjunction with calligraphy) developed, the artists’ practice was guided by underlying aesthetics. Starting in the Tang Dynasty, landscape painting went from a mere backdrop to an independent subject, reaching a height of realistic detail in the Song Dynasty. Literati painting was established in the Yuan Dynasty as a protest, but it would form the mainstream of painting in the Ming Dynasty, ultimately becoming orthodoxy in the Qing Dynasty, during which eccentric artists tried to both break and yet revive the older tradition. This intermediate-level course will investigate the history, cultural connotations and significance of Chinese painting in the landscape of world art. This counts toward the Asia place requirement for the major. Prerequisite: ARHS 111, 114 or permission of instructor.

Eternal Glories: Monuments, Museums and Churches of Rome

ARHS 242 CREDITS: 0.5

This course provides an overview of the history, culture and art of Rome from antiquity to the 18th century, with some forays into modern Rome. Classroom instruction will complement visits to different sites in the city of Rome and its environs, Florence, Naples and Pompeii. Guest lectures will focus on specific issues in ancient, medieval, Renaissance, Baroque and modern art and architecture in Rome. We will examine the formation of great art collections like that of the Borghese Gallery, the Vatican Museums, and the Capitoline collections. Students will be expected to write about art from all historical epochs. This course is only open to students in the Kenyon-Rome program. This counts toward the Europe and Americas place and the 600-1800 time requirements for the major. ARHS 110 or 111 is highly recommended. Permission of instructor required. No prerequisite.

Contemporary Art and Society

ARHS 245 CREDITS: 0.5

Beginning with Postmodernism, this course examines the primary themes of the expanding contemporary art scene since the late 20th century. Issues and movements addressed include installation art, neo-Expressionism, graffiti art, conceptual art and theory, performance and video art, the AIDS crisis and identity politics, and the globalized art market. The relationship between art and social issues is emphasized. As we will address a fairly short period of time, this course will combine a chronological and thematic approach. This counts toward the Europe and Americas place and the after 1800 time requirements for the major. Prerequisite: ARHS 111.

Art and Architecture of Japan

ARHS 246 CREDITS: 0.5

This lecture and discussion course introduces students to the visual arts, material culture and built environment of Japan, from antiquity to the present day. While we certainly cover Hokusai’s Great Wave, we also consider how this most recognizable representative of Japanese art might be less quintessentially Japanese than it initially seems. We consider how the arts of Japan are distinct from, yet also connected to, the larger Sinosphere; challenge the notion of an isolated, homogenous Japan and, finally, consider the global transmission of Japanese art. This counts toward the Asia place requirement for the major. Prerequisite: any 100-level ARHS class.

African Art in Motion

ARHS 247 CREDITS: 0.5

This course examines the visual arts of Africa and the African diaspora from the early modern period to the present using historical and theoretical frameworks of mobility, exchange and circulation. During lectures and class discussions, students examine a wide variety of art from this period that was made to be -- or has become -- mobile in a number of ways. We analyze arts meant to be worn on the body such as clothing, textiles, masks and jewelry. The role of photography, film and other new media in circulating information about these wearable arts also is considered. Additional subjects include objects and spaces influenced by or created for international exchange; the art and visual culture of the Black Atlantic; contemporary performance art by artists working on the continent or in the diaspora; the history of collecting and selling African art; and current debates about restitution and repatriation. This counts toward the Africa and the Middle East place requirement for the major. Prerequisite: ARHS 116 or permission of instructor.

Museum Studies

ARHS 371 CREDITS: 0.5

This seminar serves as an introduction to the field of museum studies. Consisting primarily of readings, discussions, assigned papers and special projects, the course will historicize the role of the museum, analyze the nature of the museum audience and study the representation and display of different cultures. Prerequisite: ARHS 111 and sophomore standing.

Topics in Ancient Art

ARHS 373 CREDITS: 0.5

This seminar explores topics and issues relating to the history of ancient art and architecture. Assignments include seminar reports, class discussion and a research paper. This counts toward the advanced course requirement for the major. This course can be repeated up to two times for credit, so long as they cover different topics. This counts toward the Europe and the Americas place and the before 600 CE time requirements for the major. Any course in art history or classics is recommended. Prerequisite: sophomore standing.
Topics in Medieval Art

ARHS 374 CREDITS: 0.5
This advanced seminar will explore topics and issues of the study of medieval art and architecture. Topics covered include sacred and secular art in the late Middle Ages, pilgrimage art, and the art in late medieval and Tudor England. Assignments will include seminar reports, class discussion, and a research paper. Prerequisite: ARHS 110 or equivalent.

Topics in Renaissance and Baroque Art

ARHS 375 CREDITS: 0.5
Various topics in the history of early modern art between the late 13th and 18th century are explored in a seminar format. Each seminar provides a forum for the in-depth study of the methods of art historical research. Discussion of weekly readings, classroom presentations and research papers will be required. This counts toward the Europe and the Americas place and the 600-1800 time requirements for the major. This course can be repeated up to two times for credit, so long as they cover different topics. Any art history course is recommended.

Topics in Asian Art

ARHS 376 CREDITS: 0.5
This advanced seminar explores topics and issues relating to the study of art and architecture of Asia. Students are expected to lead class discussions, participate thoughtfully, write weekly responses and complete a final research paper with oral presentation. It may be repeated up to two times for credit, as long as different topics are covered. This counts toward the Asia place requirement for the major. Prerequisite: any art history class focused on Asia (ARHS 114, 235, 236, 238, 239 or 240) or by permission of instructor. Students who have taken classes with AMES or classes relating to the history, languages, and culture of Asia are encouraged to contact the instructor for permission.

Topics in Modern Art

ARHS 377 CREDITS: 0.5
This seminar probes specific problems in modern European and contemporary art. Focusing upon a theme, artist or movement, the course will provide a forum for the in-depth study of the methods of art historical research. Discussion of weekly readings, classroom presentations and research papers will be required. This counts toward the after 1800 time requirement for the major. This course can be repeated up to two times for credit, so long as they cover different topics. Prerequisite: ARHS 111.
Topics in American Art

ARHS 378D CREDITS: 0.5
This course explores specific problems in American art and architecture. Topics include Modernism and the Great Depression, World War II and Abstract Expressionism and the relationship between art and politics broadly speaking. When possible, students will utilize regional museum collections. Assignments will include seminar reports, class discussion and a research paper. This course is the same as AMST 378D. This counts toward the Europe and the Americas place and the after 1800 time requirements for the major and must be taken as ARHS 378D to count towards the fine arts requirement. This course can be repeated up to two times for credit, so long as they cover different topics. Prerequisite: ARHS 111, 227D, AMST 109 or equivalent.

Senior Seminar

ARHS 480 CREDITS: 0.5
Required of all senior majors and recommended for senior minors, this course will serve as a capstone to the study of art history. Students will study the foundations of the discipline, explore the variety of methodological approaches employed by art historians, and assess current theoretical issues in the field. Prerequisite: senior standing. Offered every fall semester.

Individual Study

ARHS 493 CREDITS: 0.25 - 0.5
Normally, students may enroll in an individual study only if they have taken all the courses offered by the department in that particular area of the curriculum. Exceptions to this rule are at the discretion of the instructor with the support of the department. Individual study is considered an advanced course and, as such, the work produced should be the equivalent of a seminar or high-level intermediate class. A grade point average of 3.0 minimum in art history courses is required. Exceptions to this rule are at the discretion of the instructor with the consent of the department. The professor and the student should establish and agree on the extent and nature of the work required for the individual study. This may take several forms: several short papers, one long paper, one in-depth project (small exhibition or assisting in doing research for an exhibition), a large (and lengthy) generalized outline and annotated bibliography, public presentations and so on. The student and the professor should meet on a regular basis. The frequency is to be determined by the professor in consultation with the student. Students must seek the permission of the instructor before enrolling. Individual study is undertaken at the discretion of the instructor and must be approved by the department. Individual study can be used toward credit for the major and the minor in Art History. Because students must enroll for individual studies by the end of the seventh class day of each semester, they should begin discussion of the proposed individual study preferably the semester before, so that there is time to devise the proposal and seek departmental approval before the registrar’s deadline.

Senior Honors

ARHS 497 CREDITS: 0.5

Honors is for students with demonstrated ability to work on a research project under the supervision of a faculty member. Minimum 3.33 cumulative GPA and a minimum 3.5 major GPA. Students undertaking an honors thesis must have had at least one (and preferably two) intermediate or advanced courses at Kenyon in the topic area. Endorsement of the project by the proposed thesis advisor is mandatory before submitting an application for honors. Previous completion of a research paper in art history (preferably in the area of honors specialization) is essential. Meeting the minimum GPA does not automatically qualify a student for Honors. Typically, if a student has written an exceptionally well-researched and well-written art history paper, and meets the other criteria for acceptance into Honors, a professor might suggest that the student undertake a related topic as an honors thesis. Alternately, students can discuss pursuing an honors thesis with their academic advisor and a potential thesis advisor. The project must be supervised by an art history professor who agrees and is available to serve as the honors thesis advisor and whose interests and expertise coincide with the proposed project. In either case, the student then works closely with the thesis advisor to develop a project proposal to be submitted to the art history faculty. Departmental approval must be obtained during the spring semester preceding work on the thesis. Permission of instructor and department chair are required.

Courses in Studio Art

Color and Design

ARTS 101 CREDITS: 0.5
Color is one of life’s great joys. Visual artists and designers learn to orchestrate color and use it in a particularly sensitive and purposeful manner, just as composers learn to orchestrate sound to create music. This course is about the orchestration of color by design. Students begin by doing a series of formal exercises designed to expand their understanding of color interaction and design principles. They then use what they have learned to complete a series of mixed media collages of their own design. Conceptual and formal growth is stressed, as is creativity. Students work with pigmented paper and "found objects." This counts toward the introductory requirement for the major and minor. No prerequisite. Offered once every third year.

Drawing I

ARTS 102 CREDITS: 0.5
This course introduces students to the medium of drawing as an essential means of visual communication. A variety of methods and materials are used for both in-class studies as well as for larger and more comprehensive projects. Challenging and complex drawings will be produced with a sharp focus on both formal and conceptual issues. Technical aspects of drawing will be balanced with imaginative and experimental approaches throughout the semester. Presentations and class discussions will supplement assignments to aid in expansion of the understanding of project goals. This counts toward the introductory requirement for the major and minor. No prerequisite. Offered every semester.

Sculpture I

ARTS 103 CREDITS: 0.5
This course presents an introduction to three-dimensional art through exploration of its basic elements (line, plane, mass and color) and its basic ordering principles (unity, balance, rhythm and dominance). Individual projects will be of two types: one-day projects allowing quick, spontaneous explorations; and longer, more elaborate projects allowing careful execution of individual ideas. This course assumes little or no previous sculptural experience. However, for those who wish to move on to more elaborate materials and techniques, instruction and encouragement will be given. The course format will include slide lectures, group critiques and individual instruction. Material purchases are the responsibility of each student. This counts toward the introductory requirement for the major and minor. No prerequisite. Offered each semester.

Photography I

ARTS 106 CREDITS: 0.5

This course is an introduction to the principles, strategies and processes of photographic practice. It is designed to broaden the student's aesthetic explorations and to help the student develop a visual language in the media. This course includes instruction in digital camera operation such as image editing, creative camera work, color digital printing, and both natural and studio lighting concepts and composition. Through readings and discussions, students will be introduced to different ways of conceptualizing photography, and students will examine a range of historical and contemporary photo work as an essential part of understanding the possibilities of image making. Photography I is a project-structured course, with lectures, demonstrations, project assignments, regular critiques with active participation, discussions and one exam. Having a personal digital camera is recommended, although some cameras are available for student check out to complete the course.

Digital Imaging

ARTS 107 CREDITS: 0.5

This introductory course will enable students to explore digital media while engaging in aesthetic and conceptual practices in contemporary art. They will come to understand the fundamentals of visual form and to develop technical skills with a variety of camera and computer tools, including still-image and video editing programs. Personal studio projects will cover a variety of subjects, such as the relationship between the arts, popular culture and the liberal arts, the historic role of technology in the arts, and the role of one's cultural and historical context in the creation and interpretation of artwork. Through theory and practice, students will enhance their art-criticism skills, allowing for productive group interactions and the defining of personal aesthetic vision. Presentations and demonstrations by the professor will be supplemented by student research and response to contemporary artists and issues. At least ten hours of work per week outside of class is required. This counts toward the introductory requirement for the major and minor. No prerequisite. Offered every semester.

Back to the Drawing Board

ARTS 108 CREDITS: 0.5

In this course students will use various drawing techniques to explore design and innovation. Students will examine how the way we live in the present world is dependent on how our world has been drawn in the past. Drawing and its potential as a tool for understanding, invention and change is as vital to new ways of thinking about art as it is to communication, transportation, work and dwelling space. Students will do exercises in realistic depiction, graphic design, industrial design and architectural conceptualizing and rendering, while exploring methods and processes for enhancing and engaging your imagination. We will approach creativity and imagination as innate faculties that are fostered and strengthened through visual and intellectual training. This course is composed of four segments: observational drawing, design innovation of objects, architectural and interior design, and organizational and conceptual design. This counts toward the introductory requirement for the major and minor. No prerequisite. Offered once a year.

Photography II

ARTS 221 CREDITS: 0.5

This course is an intermediate-level study of digital photography as a creative medium. Students should have a solid foundation in image editing and asset management software, as well as knowledgeable digital camera skills including aperture and shutter speed selection for exposure control and visual impact. Assignments will focus on the development of a unique and individual relationship with making pictures, to question preconceived ideas and photographic boundaries, foster conceptual growth, and intensively discuss and integrate critical thought with practice. Students may work in a variety of approaches and styles, such as documentary, environmental portraiture, visual storytelling, abstraction, and others. Having a personal digital camera is recommended, although some cameras are available for student check out to complete the course. Prerequisite: ARTS 106, ARTS 107, or permission of instructor.

Film and Darkroom Photography

ARTS 222 CREDITS: 0.5

An introduction to black and white silver-based photography, including the principles of film exposure and processing, and printing enlargements using chemical methods and materials in the darkroom. The course begins with an emphasis on understanding and mastering technical procedures and evolves into an investigation of the creative and conceptual possibilities of making images. Refinement of wet darkroom processes include use of contrast filters, dodging and burning, negative storage, and retouching and mounting prints. Assignments, ideas and important examples of historic and contemporary photography will be presented via a series of slide lectures, critiques and discussion. Students will be responsible for purchasing supplies for the course. Having a personal film camera is recommended, although some cameras are available for student check out to complete the course. This counts toward one of four intermediate level courses for the major. Prerequisite: ARTS 106, ARTS 107 or permission of instructor.
Photography of Invention

ARTS 226 CREDITS: 0.5

This course will introduce the student to historical techniques in photography and consider how these approaches can augment contemporary vision. The student will explore the concept of light and time as they work with the properties of camera-less photography, pinhole photography, hand-coated emulsions such as palladium printing, as well as film and digital negative output. Projects will emphasize innovation, experimentation, and continuing growth in both technical and aesthetic accomplishment. Having a personal digital or film camera is recommended, although some cameras are available for student check out to complete the course. Prerequisite: ARTS 222 or permission of instructor.

Figure Drawing

This course engages students in a rigorous and thorough exploration of a two-dimensional representation of the human figure in drawing. Aesthetic and anatomical study of the human figure extends throughout the semester. Assignments include the investigation of the use of figures in formal compositions, political and social narrative constructs and psychologically complex environments. The semester culminates with a seven-foot-tall full-figure self-portrait in graphite. Students utilize a variety of drawing methods and materials, including graphite, charcoal, ink, spray-paint and collage. Students give presentations on contemporary figurative artists during the semester. "The Naked Nude" is the accompanying text for this class. This counts toward the intermediate requirement for the major and minor. Prerequisite: ARTS 102. Offered once a year.

Writing Pictures and Drawing Words: The Art of Making Cartoons, Comics, Zines and Graphic Novels

ARTS 240 CREDITS: 0.5

After a century of development, cartoons, comic books, graphic novels, and self-published zines are finding their potency and maturity as serious art forms. These cartoon-based mediums form collaboration between image and text, which blends the shape and arc of classic literature with the conventions of visual storytelling. This course will provide students with a solid foundation of ideas and methods for drawing and writing cartoons, comics, zines, and graphic novels with an emphasis on effective characterization, plot progression and narrative structure. Students will learn how to adapt writing to a comic through storyboarding create a detailed script for dialogue, setting and action and explore the interactive development of text and image. Required and recommended readings will supplement the creative assignments. Class meetings will consist of technical drawing demonstrations, writing and drawing exercises, and discussions for weekly assignments and longer projects. This counts towards the intermediate requirement for the major and minor. Prerequisite: ARTS 102. Offered every other year.

Fundamentals of Painting

ARTS 250 CREDITS: 0.5

This course is an introduction to the fundamental principles of painting. The course will begin with an investigation into painting materials and how they influence ideas. Students will explore color, composition and surface development on board, panel and canvas, while focusing on a wide range of basic approaches to oil painting. We will utilize traditional and nontraditional contemporary methods to address the historically established genres of still life, landscape and portraiture. Visual literacy and conceptual growth are essential. Teacher presentations, group critiques, student reports and readings along with individual instruction will help the student to develop original concepts. This counts toward the intermediate requirement for the major and minor. Prerequisite: ARTS 102 or 106. Offered once a year.

Painterly Prints

ARTS 251 CREDITS: 0.5

This course is intended to introduce monoprint and monotype techniques. These processes as they relate to painting and drawing are immediate, tactile and low-tech. A primary advantage is that it allows you to work a single idea in multiples. It is unique in that there can never be an exact edition of a single image. We begin with painting oil paint or ink onto Plexiglas and progress to viscosity color printing. Students learn to layer the surface and build up the image from many printings. They also have the opportunity to produce monoprints in drypoint, collograph techniques and continue printing with other methods such as collage, photo image transfer and embossing. This counts toward one of the four intermediate level courses required for the major. Prerequisite: ARTS 102.

Still/Moving: Stop-Motion Animation

ARTS 264 CREDITS: 0.5

Developing moving sequences from still images is both a historical and contemporary practice. Experimental artists and filmmakers use the process to create actions that could not be presented through real-time film. This class will emphasize manipulating materials from paper to found objects, creating innovative contexts for movement, integrating live video and sound recording and experimenting with the structure of time. The course will include both two- and three-dimensional approaches to stop-motion, with emphasis on innovation and cultural critique. Class structure will include presentations of historical and contemporary work, class demonstrations of equipment and software, studio time and critiques. This counts toward the intermediate requirement for the major and minor. Prerequisite: ARTS 101, 102, 103, 104, 106, 107, 108 or permission of instructor. Offered every other year.

ARTS 320 CREDITS: 0.5

The focus of this class is the digital making of still color photographs with particular emphasis on the potential meaning of images with color content, symbolism, and complexities such as the relationship of the photograph to culture, observational interpretations, narrative fictions, and the conjuring of the hyperreal. Students work in the digital lab on furthering their skills in capture, image editing, color workflow management, creative camera work, and color digital printing. Through readings and discussions, critiques and project-based portfolio development, students will utilize the medium as a means of refining and clarifying one's artistic language. Having a personal digital camera is recommended, although some cameras are available for student check out to complete the course. Prerequisite: ARTS106, ARTS107 or permission of instructor.

Film and Darkroom Photography II

ARTS 322 CREDITS: 0.5

This course expands the student's knowledge of black and white film photography, as they are guided towards the evolution of a personalized body of work that is culturally, theoretically and historically informed. Students will work with 35mm cameras, and have opportunities to learn other format film capture, as they further their abilities and experiences with control of the negative and the fine silver print. This course includes demonstrations, lab work, readings, field assignments, and individual and group critiques. Students will be responsible for purchasing supplies for the course. Having a personal film camera is recommended, although some cameras are available for student check out to complete the course. This course will count towards one of four intermediate level courses for the major. Prerequisite: ARTS 222 or permission of instructor.

Contemporary Photographic Practice

ARTS 329 CREDITS: 0.5

This course is structured to create an open environment for students to develop a series of self-determined photographic projects, either by analog or digital means. With faculty mentorship, students will formulate, propose, research, and pursue personal photographic work with the goal of testing and iterating new concepts, and inventing new possibilities in their artistic practice. Student work is discussed in regular critiques, and accompanied by written artist statements for each project. Students will be exposed to contemporary photographic theory, issues, and practices, in order to explore how contemporary photographers have worked to challenge, expand, and reinvent the medium. Readings, image lectures, discussions, and critiques will assist the student in articulating their own ideas and building a context for their own practice in relation to these contemporary dialogues. Having a personal film and/or digital camera is recommended, although some cameras are available for student check out to complete the course. Prior knowledge of camera functions and post-production techniques is expected. Students with digital experience from one of the digital course prerequisites may work in the digital lab, students with analog experience from one of the analog course prerequisites may work in the chemical lab, and students with both prior experiences may work in both labs. This counts toward one of four intermediate level courses for the major. Prerequisite: two of ARTS 106, 107, 220, 221, 222, 322, 325 and permission of instructor.

Printmaking

ARTS 345 CREDITS: 0.5

This class provides an overview of some of the most direct and fundamental forms of mechanical reproduction. A balance between technical mastery and imaginative visual exploration is the goal throughout this course. The processes employed during the semester combine aspects of drawing and painting, as well as a sculptural physicality, giving students the opportunity to explore and experiment with various combinations of visual processes. Students will be challenged to synthesize and internalize diverse aesthetic approaches, while working to formulate a personal vision. All students will give presentations on modern and contemporary artists. Techniques include monotype, woodcut, linoleum print, dry point and intaglio. This counts toward the intermediate requirement for the major and minor. Prerequisite: ARTS 102, 103, 106 or 107. Offered once a year.

Contemporary Painting Practices

ARTS 351 CREDITS: 0.5

This class is an intensive studio course that explores painting as a means of investigating and developing personally meaningful imagery. As an introduction, we will examine the parallel ideas of art for art's sake and art for the people, as well as the evolution of American painting from the early 20th century to the present. Throughout the semester, we will continue to study the work of contemporary painters. Students will be expected to master a wide range of visual vocabularies and approach painting from a variety of aesthetic points of view. Through structured problem-solving assignments, students will be encouraged to find ways of addressing common experiences as well as developing independent work. These assignments are designed to assist in expanding perceptions and imagination and translating them into painted images. Group and one-on-one critiques will help develop critical thinking and the ability to articulate ideas about art. This counts toward the intermediate requirement for the major and minor. Prerequisite: ARTS 102, 106, 250 or 345. Offered once a year.
Installation Art

ARTS 360 CREDITS: 0.5
This course allows students to explore art that is based on a merger of space and time and on a relationship between the artist and the visitor. Perhaps the most inclusive and pervasive art form in the last forty years, installation art has roots in cinema, performance art, set design, architecture, graphic design, land art, public art, curating, art criticism and history in addition to the more traditional visual arts. In this class, students will create immersive environments that are either site-specific or nomadic. They also will have the opportunity to integrate performance, video and audio components in their projects. Components range from everyday objects to surveillance video, from large wall drawings to interactive switches for participants to manipulate. The class will consist of demonstrations of art skills particularly useful in installation (sculptural, video, audio, graphic presentation and so on), presentations, readings, weekly critiques and cumulative projects. Previous experience with any creative media such as writing, dance, music or performance will be helpful. This counts toward the intermediate requirement for the major and minor. Prerequisite: ARTS 102, 103, 106, 107 or permission of instructor. Offered once a year.

The Art of Experimental Film and Video

ARTS 365 CREDITS: 0.5
In this course students will experiment with the creation, manipulation and exhibition of digital film and sound projects. In doing so they will continue a tradition from early filmmaking, where abstract montage, surreal fantasy and playful narratives reflected innovations in the art, science and politics of the time. Like many current artists and filmmakers, students will follow the example of these historical trajectories by using contemporary technologies and concepts for acquisition, post-production and distribution of their work. Demonstrations of a wide range of equipment and software will be provided from low-tech to high-tech. Research of historical/cultural forms, will offer a context for the assignments. Frequent critiques will offer important feedback. This counts toward the intermediate requirement for the major and minor. Prerequisite: ARTS 106, 107 or permission of instructor. Offered every other year.

Web Media

ARTS 370 CREDITS: 0.5
This course is an introduction to the elements of website design and using the language of the web as a platform for virtual interactivity and art. Students will learn and utilize HTML, CSS, and jQuery, in conjunction with Dreamweaver and Photoshop. Design concepts, functionality and best practices will be taught while looking at the history of net art and using the web as a creative medium. Image capture and creation of new artwork for projects will be primarily photo and video-based. Class will be a mix of projects, lecture, demonstrations and critique. This counts toward the intermediate requirement for the major and minor. Prerequisite: ARTS 107 or 321. Offered once a year.

Contemporary Art for Artists: Theory and Practice

ARTS 381 CREDITS: 0.5
This studio art class is structured to familiarize art students with the complex terrain of the contemporary art world. Students will first research and then use as a point of departure various aspects and trends that have been prevalent in the art world over the past 20 years. Projects will include researching concept proposals, artist statements and other written materials, oral presentation, model building and a finished body of work. Students will be responsible for choosing the media and methods for the fabrication of these projects. Students will do readings and research as well as oral/written presentations on various aspects of the aesthetic dialogue that has contributed to the shaping of contemporary art. All bodies of work will grow out of the course research and will be generated in consultation with the professor and the class as a whole. Creativity and development strategies will help guide students in their conceptual process. Prerequisite: junior standing studio art major or permission of instructor.

Advanced Studio

ARTS 480 CREDITS: 0.5
Required for majors in studio arts, this first semester of a two-semester sequence of courses is designed to enable students to develop their personal artistic vision based on the foundation of introductory and intermediate studio art courses. Students will be expected to develop a self-generated body of creative work based on a concentrated investigation of materials, methods and ideas. They will develop oral and written presentation and research skills as they work toward a professional exhibition in the second semester. Critiques, discussions, presentations and readings will provide context and feedback for this process. Students will learn to develop the elements necessary for professional exhibition of a cohesive body of work, including developing ideas, writing an artist's statement and resume, and perfecting presentation skills. Studio art majors are expected to take this class and ARTS 481 with two different faculty members. Prerequisite: senior art major or permission of instructor. Offered every fall.

Advanced Studio

Required for majors in studio arts, this course is designed to enable students to further develop their personal artistic vision based on the foundation of their earlier studio courses and ARTS 480. Well into their senior projects at the start of the semester, students will continue to refine their concepts and skills into a cohesive body of work for exhibition at the end of the semester.
Critiques, discussions and presentations will continue to amplify the studio experience. Professional presentation, writing artistic statements and resumes and visual documentation skills will be part of the course. The senior capstone, an exhibition required of studio art majors, will include artwork made during this course. Prerequisite: ARTS 480 and senior art major or permission of instructor. Offered every spring.

Individual Study

ARTS 493 CREDITS: 0.25 - 0.5

The studio art faculty does not recommend individual study because we feel it is important for students to work in the context of other student artists. We understand, however, that on rare occasions an individual study may be appropriate. Individual study must be approved by the department according to the following guidelines: Individual study should be undertaken only when a student has exhausted all the options for that medium in the regular curriculum. The subject for an individual study must be in a discipline in which the faculty member has expertise. When possible, the individual study student should participate in some aspects of a course working in a similar medium in the faculty member's field in order to gain feedback from other students. The student is responsible for writing a contract and maintaining a schedule. Because students must enroll for individual studies by the end of the seventh class day of each semester, they should begin discussion of the proposed individual study preferably the semester before, so that there is time to devise the proposal and seek departmental approval before the registrar’s deadline. An individual study does not count toward the requirements for the major; it is considered an extra course.
