

Public Policy: Requirements

Interdisciplinary

The concentration stresses the analysis and understanding of public policy. Students learn how to apply the disciplines of economics, political science, and sociology to analyze public policy problems and gain an understanding of how public policy is formulated and implemented. Students begin by taking foundation courses in economics and political science. The principles learned in these courses are applied to specific policy areas in the elective courses. In a typical program, a student takes ECON 101 and 102 as a first-year or sophomore, PSCI 310 in the sophomore year, three electives following these foundation courses, and a seminar (300- or 400-level) with a public policy focus in the senior year.

Any course taken on a pass/D/fail basis does not count toward the concentration requirements. This includes the foundation courses (ECON 101, 102 and PSCI 310).

Requirements for the Concentration

The concentration encompasses seven courses in economics, political science and/or sociology. All students are required to take three foundation courses (ECON 101, 102 and PSCI 310) and a 300- or 400-level seminar. The remaining three courses will be selected from the electives designated as appropriate for the concentration. Students must choose elective courses from at least two different departments.
